The new National Guard Bonus Program.

It's either $1500 cash.

Here's how it works. Qualified* high school students or graduates who join selected units of the Army National Guard or who fill certain vacancies can claim a $1500 cash bonus. You get half of it – $750 – right after you complete our training and are graduated from high school, and the other half in three annual payments during your period of service. This cash bonus is yours to spend or save in any way you choose.

Or $4000 for college.

Basically, the college educational assistance program works for college or vocational training. Qualified* high school graduates, or seniors about to graduate, who join selected units of the Army National Guard or who fill certain vacancies can claim educational assistance of $1000 a year for expenses during four years at any accredited institution, up to a total of $4000. This bonus may be in addition to any educational or other assistance being offered by your State.
